Modular Abbey workstations and desks offer a variety of different combinations and configurations to make effective use of floor space in both open plan offices and call centre environments.

The stylish line of the wave desk provides a comfortable working area using a simple, streamlined shape and a contemporary cantilever base to increase the appearance of space.

Desk-end semi-circular tables and desk-high pedestals provide additional top space and practical meeting points, while a choice of three or four drawer under-desk pedestals offer personal storage.

Core workstations easily facilitate team working and allow configurations of up to five desks to suit high density VDU applications.

For a more classic appearance, the slab end workstation combines quality with elegance. Fixed wave extensions and quadrant bookcases illustrate the modular options that can be incorporated to create additional space and an individual look.

A simple, rectangular slab end table can be easily adapted for executive and managerial offices by adding a slab end extension to create a more imposing desk that offers additional space and prestige.

Combining a slab end wave desk with a wave fixed extension provides a stylish alternative to more traditionally shaped managerial desks whilst still achieving a professional, attractive appearance.

Adding a desk-end teardrop table creates a more versatile managerial desk that offers extended working space and a convenient area for small or informal meetings. The chrome cantilever supports, together with the linked table and the sweeping bow front of the desk, have an imposing quality that makes this configuration unmistakably managerial.

Using an innovative programme from software designers Somnia, we can provide detailed three-dimensional room layouts using your office dimensions and furniture from the Abbey range. All the Abbey furniture has been digitally created in every top shape, base option and veneer choice which can be quickly inserted into a room plan to show the many different co-ordinated choices of tables, workstations and storage solutions.

Furniture can be moved around the room, veneer choices and other options can be viewed and the whole room plan can be rotated 360 degrees, helping you to visualise your new Abbey office from every angle before you even place an order.
